Focus on recovery, close to home.
Our transitional care program eases your journey back to health, near your loved one.

Is Transitional Care Right for You?

Transitional care is an excellent option for individuals who:

- Require post-hospitalization support for complex medical needs.
- Benefit from intensive therapy services like physical, occupational, or respiratory therapy.
- Need a supportive environment to regain strength and independence before returning home.

Smooth Recovery

Understanding Transitional Care

Transitional care provides a bridge between hospitalization and returning home. This specialized program offers skilled nursing care, physical and occupational therapy, and respiratory therapy services all within a hospital setting.

What You Need

To be referred to the Transitional Care program at Wallowa Memorial Hospital

Ask your case manager or discharge planner at the acute care hospital where you receive your initial treatment if you qualify. Certain criteria must be met. If you do qualify, ask your case manager or discharge planner to make the required referral to the care team at Wallowa Memorial Hospital, so you can transfer back to the hospital you know, and be cared for by the people who know you!

Why Choose Wallowa Memorial?

- Recovery Focused Environment: Our program offers a more supportive and therapeutic environment than a traditional skilled nursing facility.
- Superior Care: Wallowa Memorial boasts a significantly better nurse-to-patient ratio, ensuring you receive personalized attention throughout your recovery.
- Expert Team: You'll have daily access to highly skilled nurses, physicians, therapists, and other specialists dedicated to your well-being.
- Optimizing Your Return Home: Our transitional care program focuses on achieving the best possible outcomes, so you can return home feeling stronger and more independent.
